SCENIC STATE PARK is located in Itasca County, seven miles east of Bigfork, Minnesota, on County Road #7. Highway map index: I-7.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: Scenic State Park protects the entire virgin-pine shorelands of Coon and Sandwick Lakes, plus parts of Lake of the Isles, Tell, Cedar, and Pine Lakes. Coon and Sandwick Lakes provide park visitors with excellent opportunities to fish, swim, and boat. The park contains several magnificent stands of old white and red pine that visitors enjoy walking through.

WILDLIFE: Thirty-nine species of animals inhabit Scenic State Park—bald eagles, ospreys, loons, jays, pileated woodpeckers, and songbirds, among others. Along the lakes, marshes, and streams you may come across frogs, toads, or even snakes among the fourteen species of amphibians and reptiles that live in the park.

GEOLOGY: Imagine a sheet of ice hundreds of feet high slowly creeping and gouging the earth. Then, as the climate changes, the glacier begins to melt. As it retreats, it leaves behind depressions, ridges, and deposits of soil that are today's rolling hills.

In Scenic, you can walk along Chase Point, believed to be an old esker—a long ridge formed by a river tunnel within a glacier. Coon and Sandwick Lakes are water-filled depressions left over from old Glacial Lake Agassiz. Imagine a lake covering an area from the Minnesota-North Dakota-Canada border down into the Bigfork area. That was the lake that remained after the glacier melted.

HISTORY: The Ojibwa used this area as part of their hunting grounds, but there is little evidence of heavy Indian use.

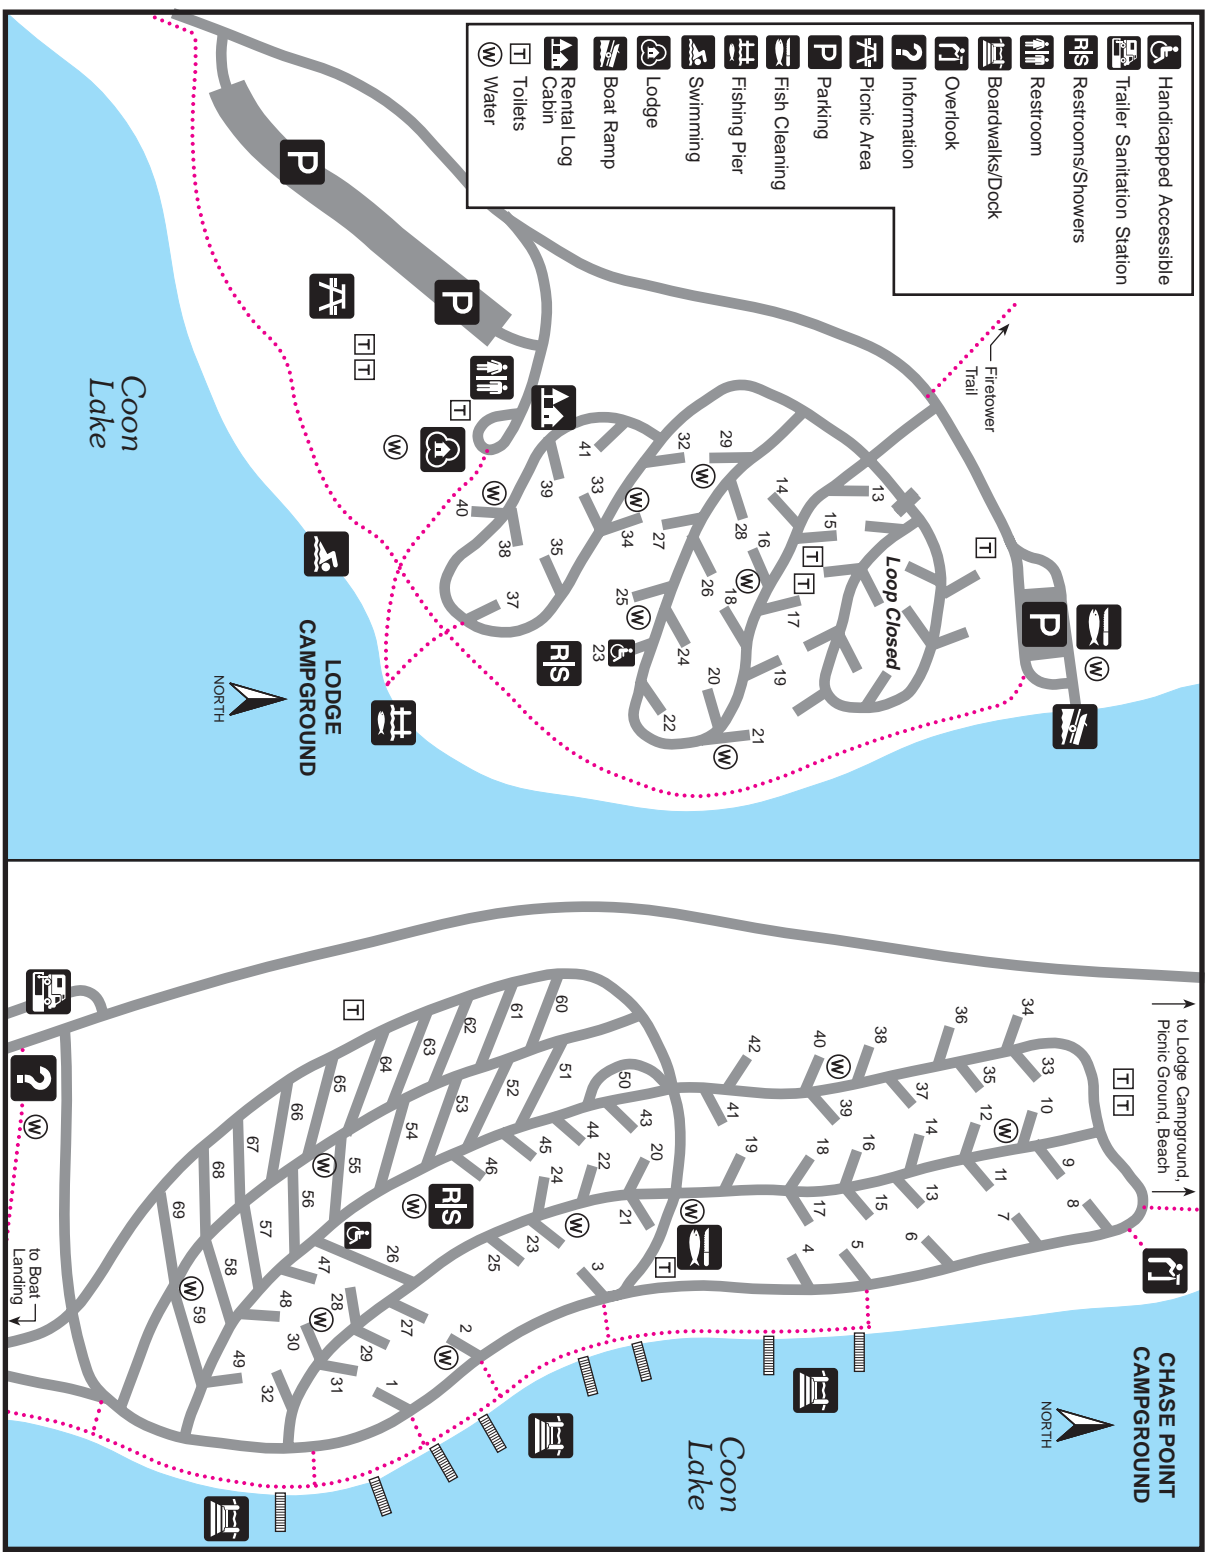

Logging around Scenic State Park started in the late nineteenth century. Logging companies began clearing the forest and hauling logs down the Bigfork River for the spring logging drive to the Rainy River. The life of loggers was hard and difficult. They began early in the morning and usually worked late into the evening.

As land was cleared, homesteaders came in and attempted—unsuccessfully—to farm the area. Early residents of the Bigfork area organized a movement to preserve the birch and pines around Coon and Sandwick Lakes. Their efforts were rewarded when, in 1921, Minnesota passed a law creating a park commission establishing Scenic State Park.

INTERPRETIVE PROGRAM: In the summer, visitors interested in learning about the natural and human history of the park should check the bulletin boards at the contact station, campgrounds, and picnic areas for daily schedules of hikes, demonstrations, and evening programs. The park naturalist conducts a variety of programs for visitors.

SO EVERYONE CAN ENJOY THE PARK...
